"FALLING MAN"

by

Ernest Trova
(b.1927 American)

Ernest Trova, a self-trained St. Louis native, became one of the most significant artists of the late twentieth century.

Best known for his signature image, Falling Man, Trova considered his entire output a single "work in progress."

A collector of classic American comic character toys, Trova admired their Surrealism and used them in some of his pieces. He began as a painter and progressed through three-dimensional constructions to his mature medium - sculpture. Trova's gift of forty of his works led to the opening of the Laumeier Sculpture Park in St. Louis.

With his Falling Man, Ernest Trova created one of the defining artistic images of his time.

Examples of the artists work can be found in numerous major galleries including the National Gallery of Art, Smithsonian American Art Museum, Mobile Museum of Art, Phoenix Art Museum, and Yale University Art Gallery.
